Nordau Speaks To Assembly Here At 10:15

"Palestine And Zionism" Will Be Discussed By Speaker

Maxa Nordau, daughter of the late philosopher and Zionist leader, Max Nordau, will discuss "Palestine and Zionism" at assembly at 10:15 this morning.

French by birth and a resident of Paris until the evacuation of the city, she arrived in the United States after a seven-month stay in unoccupied France.

Maxa Nordau fled with her daughter to the southern provinces during the chaotic days of the Nazi blitzkrieg. In a small town near the Spanish border she awaited the demobilization of her husband, Capt. Claude Gruenblat-Nordau, a member of the aviation corps in this and the first World War.

The Vichy government granted permission for her to visit the United States and she finally obtained passage on an American export liner from Lisbon. She was accompanied to America by her husband and child.

A well-known portrait and landscape painter, Maxa Nordau also has been active in French social and feminist movements.

Her brilliant father designated her as his intellectual heir. For several years before his death in the early 20's, she served as his secretary and accompanied him in his travels throughout Europe, where he spoke and wrote on behalf of a homeland for Judaism in Palestine.

Palestine, a memorial to the zeal of Max Nordau and his associates, now houses the grave of her father.

The public may attend the lecture without charge.

Miss Maxa Nordau will speak at the assembly this morning at 10:15. The 10:15 classes will meet at 9:10. Miss Nordau's topic is "Palestine and Zionism."

Campus Picnic Will Highlight Week's Program

Food and fun will be featured at the All-Campus picnic which will take place behind the Ad Building Thursday evening. The food will be ready to be served promptly at 6 o'clock. The only ticket necessary for admission is your "ac card." The entire student body, all faculty teaching on the campus this summer, and all the faculty living in Bowling Green are invited to attend and join the fun.

A square dance in the Rec Hall and a record concert in the amphitheatre behind the Falcon's Nest will be offered to complete the evening's entertainment.

The concert, the second of its kind this week, will include selections by two modern American composers. The numbers, which will be announced by Miss Dorothy Mercer of Bowling Green, are "The Incredible Flutist," a ballet by Walter Piston, and "Music for Theatre," a suite by Aaron Copeland.

The Social Committee has planned a second big evening of fun for this week. This will be a dance to be held at the Falcon's Nest at 9 o'clock on Saturday evening. Refreshments will be served.

Miss Grace Gessner of Fremont, a summer student, described the numbers on the all-Tschaikowsky program in the amphitheatre last night.

Bronson Gets Award From Duke

John Bronson, an outstanding student in the June graduating class, has received a scholarship to the Law School at Duke University at Durham, N. C.

His matriculation fees and tuition will be covered by the scholarship, which was announced by Dean H. C. Horack.

Bronson, chairman of the University Social Committee this summer, will enter Duke Sept. 28. He majored in biology as an undergraduate.

After graduation in 1938 from Gibsonburg High School, Bronson attended the University of Toledo before coming to Bowling Green.

He has been president of Delhi fraternity, president of Pi Kappa Delta, vice president of the Newman club, and member of Book and Motor, Speech Bureau, and the debate squad.

Bricker May Be Here To Meet With Council

The Inter-University Council, composed of the presidents and the business managers of the five state universities in Ohio, will meet at the University this afternoon.

There is a possibility that Governor Bricker will meet with the group. His inability to be here caused postponement of the meeting from May.

If the governor comes, it will be his first campus visit in a year. He and the other guests are to inspect the five new buildings erected in the last year.

The men are to assemble at noon in the office of Dr. Frank J. Prout, University president, and have lunch at 1 p. m. at the Falcon's Nest, student union building.

After a business session and a campus tour the group probably will have dinner at the Rockwell Trout Club at Castalia.

The Inter-University Council meets, usually in Columbus, at the call of the president, Dr. Howard Bevis, president of Ohio State University. W. P. Roubush, secretary of the board of trustees of Miami University, is secretary.

This will be the first time the group has come here.

Bunn Announces New Army Regulations

Several changes in army and navy recruiting of college students were reported today by Registrar John W. Bunn of Bowling Green State University.

The major changes are:

1. The government services—army, navy, marines, army air corps, and naval air corps—will have joint recruiting parties instead of individual recruiting in an effort to avoid "methods indicative of competitive bidding."

2. A joint recruiting party will visit the campus early this fall to acquaint students with the various branches of the service, then return later to interview, select, and enlist the men who have applied to Mr. Bunn for one of the services and have been approved by a board selected by Dr. Frank J. Prout, University president.

3. The University has definite quotas by student classes in the unassigned Army Enlisted Reserve Corps and the Army Air Force Enlisted Reserve instead of the virtually unlimited quotas designated earlier.

4. The navy will accept without quota until Nov. 1 all eligible students for the V-1 program, which is open only to freshmen and sophomores, and V-7, open only to juniors and seniors.

5. Deferment in the navy V-5 program is indefinite, depending upon the backlog of applicants, and will not necessarily last two years.

Mr. Bunn attended last week in Columbus a meeting of representatives of the government services and colleges in the Fifth Corps Area.

The joint recruiting is an effort to make the procedure

Quotable Quotes

By ACP

In wartime most schools and colleges are confronted with the problem of decreasing enrollments and, at the same time, with the necessity of maintaining staff, plant and the ordinary activities of peace-time education. The need for men in the armed forces and in production capacities is expected to make great inroads into the student body of men's colleges and universities the country over.

It might be expected, too, that the evening college, for so many years considered an educational anomaly, would fall by the wayside along with what have been termed "marginal" educational programs. On the contrary, the evening college has been quietly but persistently becoming an important and vital part of the educational scene in urban communities and, unless great difficulties arise from transportation problems and shifting hours of labor, it will lose fewer students, comparatively, than will the day colleges.

This is partly because many of the men in the evening colleges have dependents or will be deferred because of their occupations, and also because larger numbers of women are enrolling yearly in evening college programs. Curtailments, therefore, will be minor and should not affect the stability or the prestige of this group.

A real boom will be experienced by the evening colleges for several years after the war is over. Thousands of resident students who have joined the armed forces may later choose to finish their educational program in the evening college. Also hundreds of thousands of others who have been trained in the production skills of defense industries will be faced with the necessity of re-educating themselves for peacetime activities. The evening college will be ideal for this purpose.

Although no evening college administrative officer would place his program above that of the regular resident offerings, he can still point out some unique advantages for the evening college.

The evening college is not an educational cure-all. To work by day and study by night require a high degree of energy and determination and, above all, a superior ability. Students lacking these qualities soon drop out of the evening college, leaving those men and women who are destined to take their places in the future leadership of our country.

Although the traditional conservatism of the usual college faculty is so deep-rooted as to make basic academic change a slow and deliberate process, the development of the evening college has been so far-reaching as to astonish even some of the more liberal professors. No so long ago most evening college students were considered academic outcasts. They received no credit for the work done, regardless of its quality or of the courses taken. They had to be satisfied with the "cultural" value of the program, whether it was in engineering, science or the arts.

Letters To The Editor . . .

Editor's Note—Mr. Mittleman's letter is about the feud raging over whether American women act too much. Jesse will be remembered as the editor of the Bee Gee News of the last two summers.

Dear President of the WLRC and Fernando:

I have been receiving copies of the Bee Gee News even in this remote section of the USA, and could hardly overlook the discussion rampant in the "Letters" column concerning women (God bless 'em) and their characteristic "putting on" which Mr. Alegria so loudly decries. If my humble opinion on the subject is worth putting into print, I frankly think you are both off the beam. Raul says that girls tend to lead a life of fun and pleasure with nary a mundane care, while President of WLRC says he hasn't met the right girls. I'm slightly inclined to agree with the latter, but with this important reservation. The "right" girls, girls who believe in "individual sacrifice," "deep understanding," etc., will not generally be found in the class of girls with whom Mr. Alegria associates. He admits that most of his feminine acquaintances have been college students. These girls are therefore, for the most part, between the ages of 18 and 22. A girl at this age in college is foolish if she is going to emphasize the qualities which Fernando finds lacking. A coed likes to be gay and carefree and go to dances and picnics and have dates. There is plenty of time for the understanding and faith and loyalty after she graduates and is ready to marry.

I would hesitate before judging all college women by the one letter you received from a friend of yours, Mr. Alegria, who apparently took things too seriously. If college men and women were to believe everything the other said on dates, there would be a string of broken hearts from Kohl Hall to the Skol House. College is, besides a place of learning, a fine opportunity for a four-year "fling" before going out into a world of reality. All coeds and fellows know this, either consciously or subconsciously, and therefore they say things which are not even meant to be believed. College girls are not quite as bad as you paint them. They want to have fun, just as you and I. There is little room in college for the development of "deep and durable feelings." These things come later.

Sincerely,

JESSE MITTLEMAN.

Flashes From Other Colleges

McCaldo and Lafelmere, "college educated steers," have added $300 to the student loan fund at the University of Nebraska Agricultural College.

Presented to the agricultural college by interested Nebraskans, the steers spent several months in college feedlots before they were sold to provide funds for the education of worthy students.

In a recent questionnaire, students at the Arizona State College (Tempe) were asked to give their ideas of the most difficult position to play on a football team.

Here are some of the answers:

Quarterback, guard, center, "because he always sees things upside down," coach "because he never knows just what's going to happen," water-boy, bench-warmer, flat-on-your-back and season-ticket holders.

Chips Of Chatter For Reading Matter

By BOB SEALOCK

And this week when we say that this hot weather is terrific we "ain't" lying and we hope that by the time the paper comes out we are wrong. No fooling, the winter time has its disadvantages but at least it is cool. We would like to go on record as favoring a mild climate all year round. And to think that the University catalog says that this climate is conducive to study. All this may be very true but who in the hell feels like studying in this hot weather.

And to the tune of the "Jersey Bounce," we watch the planes come in, we watch the planes go out; we watch the planes come in, and then we watch them go out again. Really, the increased air activity over the campus is something which helps relieve the monotony of the sky on these hot days. And we understand that we civies haven't a chance against the boys in the Navy. Oh well, it is always something to take away from the general run of men.

It won't be long now before we will be privileged to see "ye playee" "Hay Fever" as presented by the University players. Frankly, we are looking forward to this with a great deal of anticipation. After all, three months is a long time without seeing the dramas go through their paces. And besides we hear that it is funny.

And right here we would like to digress for a moment to say that we admire Professor Smith's selection of a comedy. Perhaps most people think that it is smart and sophisticated to be disillusioned in these times but we would like to go out on a limb and say that we think it is silly. After all, these are trying days for most of us. The future offers good excuse for cynicism and any act that averts this trend is deeply appreciated. I once heard a man say that he liked a good comedy because he already had enough misery in his life without having to go and see someone else's. And that is the way we feel. So let us say right now that we hope that "Hay Fever" is a big success and we wish it a lot of luck.

It seems that the feud of whether American women act or not has no longer become a local issue. For in the Toledo Times of last Sunday there was more space devoted to the happenings on our campus in relation to the subject than we have devoted to it in its entirety. No kidding, it is fun to watch a harmless statement grow to such proportions. It seems to us that Mr. Alegria deserves a vote of thanks for starting people to think about something else besides themselves. So congratulations Fernando. You did in one sentence what we have been trying to do for years.

And John Bronson's letter threw a lot of light on the subject of campus beauty. Really, we think that sometimes people take a beautiful campus for granted. But we agree with Mr. Bronson that credit should be given where credit due. So those of you who missed the letter of last week would do well to get a copy of last week's Bee Gee News and read John Bronson's letter about the splendid work that is being done by Dr. Clare Martin.

And now, in closing, we would like to tell you something which we are sure will interest you all. And that is that there is really a Teddy Titmouse. In fact we have seen him running around the News office and our only wish is that you all could see him. For he is rather cute as rats go. He has large, very large ears and has a tendency to be rather brown. The reason why Mr. Titmouse's column was not in last week was because he fell into the wastepaper basket and couldn't get out. However, after doing such a fine job of writing the first week we took pity and let him out, so this week once again he is writing for you. You lucky people.

As I See It

By TEDDY TITMOUSE

Miss Lucy Pillbaum, the business office secretary, was really dead. In fact she was the deadest secretary I'd ever seen and I've seen aplenty. Funny, too, a toughened babe like Lucy. One minute she was a typin away in the office and the next—BLOTTO!—she was a layin on the floor, deader'n a pint at Kohl Hall on Sat. nite. We all stood around in a grim faced little circle and pretty son Doc Frown gets up off the floor, chucks his stethoscope in his hip pocket and looks around the ring. His faced is hard, the muscles in his neck jerk, perspiration stands out like jaw breakers on his forehead. "Yep," he says, "she's deader'n a quart—I mean she's dead all right — auricular brokidericus compoundosis — heart attack." We sighed. Lucy taken suddenly from us in the prime of life. Too bad, too bad.

"Pardon please, one moment." We all looks up and there stands the Chinaman whom I'd seen snoopin around lately. "Please allow to introduce humble self: am Ding Po, have gleat uncle name Edgar Allen and tenth cousin on Edgar's side name Chollie Shan. One side please. Aha! A body! What is verdict?"

An Doc Frown says, "heart attack."

"Not so fast, doctor. As Confucious say, net look empty but have something fishy about it. Observe, please, red spot on lady's back near neck. What cause this when she fall forward on face? Also how explain lack of tenseness in muscle which is sign of normal heart attack? This is murder. Who you tly shield, Doctor Frown?"

Just then another voice booms in. "Wha's this all about? Does this examination cost anything?"

"Who you?" says Ding.

"I'm E. J. Bleisher and I demand to know..."

"Ah yes, Mister Bleisher. Your secretary is dead. What you try to conceal in hand please?"

"Aha! A nickle! You may keep same, but do not dent further. And here is list of students next year. Velly interesting! Observe wastebasket. Miss Pillbaum was typing same since basket is full, but observe many errors. Velly strange. Secretary who cannot type is murdered. And what else you have Mr. Bleisher? Aha! Blowing Gleen University budgit—one column say dolla sixty nine, other column say same. Velly interesting, velly. Why you try to smuggle away, Mr. Bleisher? An why you leave this letter on Secretary Pillbaum desk untouched? Aha! Love letter to one Johnny Doboy in Ireland. Aha! And now you other secretary there. Why you so red in face? An what you have in hand. Let see, please, Miss Wiggledrom. Aha! Also love letter and by the seven garbage pails of Wun Hung Lo, is to same Johnny Doboy! AHA! Two secretary have same sweetheart. You suspect number one until further notice, Miss Wiggledrom."

Star of Play

Miss Virginia Falknor, freshman from Dayton, O., has the lead in the University Players' summer production in Noel Coward's sparkling and sophisticated comedy "Hay Fever." The play is to be presented July 30 in the University Auditorium.

Portraying the mad life of a family of neurotics, the play was a rollicking success on both the New York and London stage.

Prof. Elden T. Smith is the director.

"Now what's going on in here anyhow?"

"Who you, please?"

"I'm John W. Gunn, the youngest registrar in the state and this is my assistant, Mr. Reattie."

"Where you two youngsters were when body hit floor?"

"I was in my office, flying a kite out of the window and Sonny, I mean Mr. Reattie, had a marble game down below with some big fellows from the training school."

And then Ding says, "How you in next room know when Lucy die? How long Lucy dead now, Doctor Frown?"

"Two minutes, thirty eight and five tenths seconds, roughly."

"Why Mr. Gunn," says Miss Wiggledrom, "you were in here just that long ago congratulating Lucy on the bookkeeping..."

"Aha!" says Ding, "case now complete! Piece number seventy seven fit exactly; velly simple, velly simple indeed."

Lucy Pillbaum is flustered secretary to Mister Bleisher, therefore in position to know all. Today have implotant papers to type—(1) list of next year students, and (2) statement of budgit; and what happen? She die before she can complete same. But she would have finish if she had not made so much mistakes. Why good secretary make mistakes? Because she cannot type? No. Because of startling information on sheets which Mister Bleisher try to hide. One sheet say budgit is balanced, other say that only one third of students next year come from Sandusky. Shock is too great and the Mighty Pillbaum heart grow faint, and when Mister Gunn come in and slap her on back in congratulation, it is the straw which break camel back. But do not worry, Mr. Gunn, jury will not convict you because you have had enough punishment in case already. So solly simple case take so long."

Service Men On Parade

By PATRICIA PRATT

Two former Bowling Green brothers, James and Robert Hunter, are flying high these days. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hunter of Bowling Green. Both men enlisted in the Air Corps at the beginning of their junior year and are doing very well.

Lieut. James Hunter left school a year ago last February and is now an instructor at Gunter Field, Montgomery, Ala.

While in college he was enrolled in the College of Business Administration; belonged to the former Commoners' fraternity, now known as the Pi Kappa Alpha, and played in the University orchestra and band.

During his two years in college he took pre-engineering; was a member of the Commoners' fraternity, and a member of the Men's Glee club.

Jim and Bob are two of our many CPT students who didn't waste their flying ability. We'll probably hear a great deal more of these brothers, so until then, let's have them — Keep 'Em Flying!

Physical Exams Given Enlistees

Physical examinations were given Friday for the Bowling Green students applying for the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps.

Those successful in the examination will be interviewed later by a personnel officer from Fort Hayes. He will determine whether the students are good officer prospects.

A recruiting officer will be called to administer the oath to those accepted under the new army plan.

Enrollees will be deferred as long as they remain in college and then will have officers' training. Those who flunk out of college will immediately enter the army as privates.

Registrar John W. Bunn has enrollment blanks for the reserve plan.

Already Uncle Sam has walked away with Co-captain Stan Yoder, who gained statewide honors with his rugged blocking and tackling during last year's season. Two junior lettermen, Frank Usak and Chuck Buckenmyer, are already in the armed forces, while six of last year's first-year letter winners are training for Navy or Army service.

Future Pilots For Navy Have Full Schedule

Rigid routine is being followed by the 10 Navy V-5 enlistees assigned to Bowling Green for primary civilian pilot training.

The youths are housed in Kohl Hall, men's dormitory, and fed at the Falcon's Nest, student union building.

In the first intensive course of its kind here, the boys arrived last Wednesday night and had rides Thursday in the two Piper Cub training planes in which they will learn to fly.

Additional planes will be used later during the eight-week course set up by the navy. They are brought here by Ray Vaughn of Findlay, flight contractor, who has taught previous groups of Bowling Green students to fly under a part-time set-up at Findlay.

Instruction is being given at the new Bricker Airport, University field at the corner of Poe and Yount roads, north of the campus. A grader is being used to smooth out the runways.

The two flight instructors are Richard S. Finton and Lamar Swander, both of Findlay.

Maj. J. K. Raney, campus CPT coordinator, teaches civilian regulations and navigation; Dr. Samuel Mayfield, meteorology; Dr. Heinlen Hall, physics and mathematics; Fred Marsh, calisthenics and military and physical training, and Godfrey Bain, code.

The trainees are: Reuben Iven Goranson, 340 W. Evers Avenue, and Jay Riley Miller, 248, Manville Avenue, both of Bowling Green; Arthur Floyd Anderson, Detroit; Michael Henry Krouse, Lima; Loyal George Wachtman and Ronald Blair Baringer, both of Defiance; Eugene Reuben Boyer, Tiffin; Albert John Fehr, Sandusky; John Anthony Hoffman, Fremont, and Don Terry Scott,

Alegria Talks To Kiwanians

Kiwanians learned at their luncheon meeting last week that fear of the United States is the "worst problem" in Latin America.

The speaker, Fernando Alegria, University student from Santiago, Chile, praised the good neighbor policy but said Axis propaganda keeps Latin Americans thinking about United States "imperialism" of the pre-Roosevelt era.

"I think inter-American unity can be reached in a short time. Latin America is helped by unity of language and political independence," Alegria asserted.

"We must emphasize that Pan-Americanism is enduring, that Latin America has its own culture, and that South America is a group of different countries, no two of which are as much alike as you perhaps think they are."

The speaker scored "lack of interest" by many North Americans in South American culture and "retention of the nationalistic idea" by those who move south of the border.

The Chilean contended that, because his homeland is 3,000 miles long and 150 miles wide and has little protection in case of invasion or sea bombardment, the United States probably will have to send men and materials if and when Chile enters the war against the Axis.

Rooms are to be thoroughly cleaned during the day.

On weekdays rooms must be ready for inspection by 7 a. m.; on Sundays, by noon. 10 p. m. In quarters 10:15 p. m. Lights out.

Allhouse Is Winner

Miss Evelyn Allhouse, senior from Paulding, O., was declared winner of last week's Bee Gee News-Cla-Zel Theatre Contest.

Miss Allhouse will receive two passes to the Cla-Zel Theatre.

Everyone is urged to enter the contest this week. The deadline for entries is 4:00 next Monday afternoon.

Those who are participating should drop their corrections in the Bee Gee News box in the Well.

When Jessica Dragonette appeared at Kent State University (Ohio) to present a voice concert, she received a new addition to her collection on hats with meanings.

The addition was a Kent State 1945 freshman dink. Robert Byrne, president of the freshman class, presented the dink to Miss Dragonette at a press conference.
